

The West Partnership Leading Collaborative Enquiry

Are you interested collaborative enquiry?
Are you interested in developing collaborative working within your context?
Are you interested in how collaborative models can support improvement?
Would you like to join a supportive network of leaders to explore how to create conditions for effective collaboration?

If the answer is “yes” to any of the above questions you will be interested in the West Partnership Leading Collaborative Enquiry Network

We are looking for school leaders to join our 2020-21 network

Research tells us that collaborative enquiry is an effective way to improve outcomes for young people so, in partnership with the Glasgow University Robert Owen Centre for Educational Change and Education Scotland, the West Partnership is inviting school leaders to join a professional support network to explore how to improve the conditions for effective collaboration. Participating in the network includes attending 2 one day sessions reflecting and evaluating collaborative practice. The network are then supported over a year in developing collaborative practice in their context through drop-in support sessions and professional learning opportunities

For further information contact Helen Brown, Lead Officer, Collaborative Learning Networks: gw09brownhelen@glow.sch.uk

Robert Owen
Centre for Educational Change

West Partnership: Definition of Collaboration

Collaboration involves working together, to understand and improve pedagogy for agreed purposes, which leads to better outcomes, informed by evidence and critical self-reflection.

